

ISLAMIC FINANCE

Certified Islamic Specialist in Capital Markets

From CIBAFI Website:

"Capital markets comprise one of the significant organs in the economies of modern states for their key role in collecting savings and pumping investments to finance constructive projects that contribute to the production of goods and provision of services in the community, which leads to increased rates of growth in the economy and development in societies.

The Certified Islamic Specialist in Capital markets aims to qualify the experienced staff in the Islamic financial institutions to understand the nature and the basics of investment in the various financial markets, and to identify the techniques of the used tools and the practical applications of its products and demonstrate its Islamic legitimate origin. In addition to that, it also aims at determining the extent of compatibility of a number of tools and modern products with the provisions of Islamic law, such as buying on margin, short selling, financial derivatives and others. "
